At the Christian Church.

The sermon at the Christian church last night was worthy of an audience ten times greater than the attendance. All Christian people and others could have heard it with profit. The subject, "How to Read the Scriptures," was handled in an ingenious and masterly manner. The design of the sermon was to show that the scriptures are to be treated as other sciences are now treated, namely, by the inductive process of reasoning, that they are susceptible to that process and treated thus give equally good results in religious doctrine as that process has given in science since it was introduced by Sir Roger Bacon. It was a more than usually able effort and instructive even to persons most conversant with religious matters. If the sermon was original with the speaker, as there is no reason to doubt, it places him in first rank as a forensic religious pleader, and if he has other sermons equal to that last night no Waco christian can afford to neglect the services at the Christian church. There will be preaching to-night and all the week.

Dreams That Pay.

Appropos of the county commissioner, that body contains an odd fellow known all over the county as Tom Cox. His peculiarity is dreams. His dreams are practical ones. Whenever he dreams about any particular cow or horse he goes next day and buys the animal or when about a piece of land on his farm with cotton on it he always plants that piece of land in cotton. What is most singular is that he always makes money out of the animals he buys in his dreams and raises big cotton on his vision pieces of land. Last summer he lay one day on a bench in the court house fast asleep and in his sleep he dreamed a county dream. The free bridge was the exciting theme then and it was puzzling the commissioners. Tom Cox dreamed that he was digging a tunnel under the river to avoid the bridge monopoly. He told his dream and folks laughed at him. But Tom Cox's dreams are not to be sneezed at. There was one who did not laugh and that was Jim Baker. He caught on to Cox's dream, and if you go up the river about a quarter of a mile above the bridge you will see the river spanned by a magnificent free roadway. That roadway grew out of Tom Cox's dream.

The boys and girls are all going to Kophal's for fruits, toys and candies. Fancy groceries, fine wine and liquors at Early & Fink's.

LOCAL PICK-UPS.

There is said to be one or two serious cases of diptheria in town.

Look out for stagnant water and decaying vegetable matter, there's millions in it.

Keep the head cool, read the Bible and don't eat stale vegetables just now.

The hammer and the saw keep on pounding and ripping and the pedestrian still stumbles over bricks and lumber piles in the streets of Waco.

It is better to laugh than to cry, the cotton is coming out all right, anyhow.

Make your preparations to attend Hill's Business College night sessions, this year. It will be money in your pockets in after years.

Don't fail to go and hear the Rev. A. A. Gilbert, to-night, at the Christian church.

Now is the critical time with shade trees. A few buckets of water applied now to the roots will save many a valuable tree which, otherwise, might die.

One of the prettiest new homes in the city is the cottage of Mr. Lednum, just finished, on Eleventh and Morrow streets, in the western part of the city. It is just finished.

Times are hard and malarial fever is bad but both will be forgotten a hundred years from now and other folks will be taking a whack at hard times and fever.

Mr. Mike Palmo kindly furnishes Padgett's Park with all its appliances free to the "Little Five," for whose benefit the concert and dance is given to-morrow night.

See advertisement of the old reliable house of Lewine Brothers, on first page. The name is a familiar and household word in Waco. Read their chat with the trade carefully and look out for new matter from time to time.

About 70 lots were sold for city taxes in the spring and they are being redeemed one by one and from time to time. Every little while a straggler straggles in to the city collector to get his property back.

The Democratic State Convention met in Dallas yesterday morning with 5000 people in the hall, which was filled with Democratic mottoes and with flags and other decorations, and organized at 12:30, with George C. Peddleton as temporary chairman and committees were appointed amid a great deal of speech making, and a great deal of enthusiasm. No night session was held but instead Dallas gave a grand torchlight procession and speeches were made by Gov. Ross and others.

The annual catalogue of Paul Quinn College is laid on our table. It shows the prosperity of the college in the list of last year's students, and gives minute information in regard to the history of the college, its plans and needs. The catalogue was printed by the Paul Quinn job rooms, and is an elegant piece of work mechanical and typographical.

In the city court this morning a hack driver was fined one dollar for drumming for passengers on the platform of the Houston and Texas Central depot. A number of small kids were up before his honor charged with throwing epithets and rocks at each other, but his honor remembered the time when he was a small boy and with a tear in his eye, bade them go and let up on further rockthrowing.

Dr. W. F. Buck, which a telegram on our first page records as committing suicide on the 13th inst. at Bird, Texas, formerly lived in Waco and was here a few months ago. His wife and two children died in this city some time ago and both are buried here. Dr. Buck is a brother of W. S. Buck, now of Stephenville, Tex., but formerly a law partner of Col. E. A. McKinney, of this city; he also has a brother, G. J. Buck, proprietor of a newspaper at Laredo, Texas. Deceased had many friends here who will be sorry to learn of his sudden and tragic death, for he stood very high with all who were acquainted with him in Waco. The telegram states that his wife and children are in Pecos City, Tex., but this must be a mistake, as the News reporter ascertained from good authority here, that wife and children of Dr. Buck we have reference to (which evidently is the same man alluded to in the telegram) died in Waco some time ago.
